AsiaPay And UDomain Integrate with PayPal to Provide International Payment Platform for Hong Kong Merchants

Hong Kong, April 26, 2005 - PayPal, one of the world's leading online payment providers, today announced that it has teamed up with two Hong Kong based companies to offer Hong Kong merchants a simple, secure and cost-effective payment solution enabling cross border trade via the Internet. AsiaPay and UDomain are working together with PayPal to meet the needs of medium to small businesses operating in Hong Kong that are looking at increasing their markets overseas.

PayPal has been ranked the number one personal finance site according to Nielsen//NetRatings, and has quickly become a global leader in online payment solutions.

PayPal Senior Manager, International, Michael Blum said by working with AsiaPay and UDomain, PayPal paves the way for Hong Kong merchants to draw on its large base of worldwide users.

PayPal has more than 71.6 million user accounts worldwide and is available in 45 markets, supported by six of the world's major currencies.

"By using PayPal, merchants are able to accept credit card, bank account or stored value payments, often at a lower cost than traditional merchant accounts," Mr Blum said. "PayPal is easy to integrate, cost-effective and opens the door to tens of millions of online shoppers around the world."

"Working with AsiaPay and UDomain, we've made it even easier for Hong Kong merchants to integrate and use PayPal for their cross border e-commerce businesses," Mr Blum added.

AsiaPay provides PayPal users with a simple, integrated and easy-to-set up payment service that enables merchants of any size to broaden online payment acceptance while UDomain is providing the web-hosting facilities, including product catalogue, shopping cart, and payment gateway.

"This opportunity to work with PayPal could translate to new buyers and incremental sales for merchants in Hong Kong along with overhead savings in integration and ongoing payment processing support under a single platform," said Joseph Chan, AsiaPay's Chief Executive Officer. "Teaming up with PayPal furthers our business goal by offering merchants the broadest range of payment methods available and enhancing service and convenience to customers."

"Our UDomain solution allows businesses to easily set up their online sales presence, and there are so many opportunities for businesses to capitalise on this through our relationship with PayPal," said To Cheung, Founder and Chief Executive Officer of UDomain.
